DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

1. Applicant's arguments with respect to the claims have been considered but are not persuasive.

Applicant's Arguments

a) Applicant states Uehira does not disclose a device with either a timer or programming which performs all the steps of storing, starting the timer, and in response to expiration of the predetermined interval causing the media device to return to the primary channel.

Examiner's Response

a) Initially the examiner would like to point out, that although the applicant's invention pertains to channel surfing/commercial skipping and returning to a main channel/program at the expiry of a predetermined time, the claims do not currently limit themselves to such an environment thus necessitating the rejection via Uehira, given the broadest interpretation of the claimed invention.

Uehira does disclose a remote which includes a timer/clock and programming which performs the required steps as stated below. As stated in the rejection, the user can input which programs to record/watch by entering the appropriate commands/actions, where the remote monitors the present time of the timepiece provided in the VTR 1 responsive to CPU 16 of the input device, and when the recording start times stored is equal to the time counted by the timepiece the information in the RAM 17 is read out of the input device and applied to the control circuit of the VTR (col 7, line 33-42). Thus if the 1st program to record is primary channel 5 (i.e. user records channel 5 for 30 minutes, then channel 6 for 30 minutes, and then back to channel 5 for 30 minutes) and the second program is channel 6 and the third program is channel 5, the remote will instruct the media device (VTR) to return to the primary channel (5 in this instance) based upon the viewers recording instructions and times of recording.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 6-9, 11 and 15-19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Uehira, US 4,755,883.

In considering claims 6 and 15,

a) the claimed timer... is met by remote controller 6 which includes a period to record (i.e. 30 minutes as shown in Fig 5A). Thus when the period is finished the next reserved no (would be 6 in this case is then recorded—which may be the from the same or different channel. Uehira discloses that remote 6 may include a timepiece so that the present time counter by the timepiece is displayed on display 8 (col 5, line 6-12).

b) the claimed a wireless transmitter... is met where the remote includes a wireless transmitter (via light emitting diode 9, Fig 4c)

c) the claimed memory... is met by memory 12, 13 along with CPU 11 (Fig 3)

Art Unit: 2614

d) the claimed programming steps... is met where the user is able to program/select includes the recording start time, recording period of time, channel number of the TV a time or program number and the like (col 6, line 46-49). Wherein upon expiration of the currently being recorded video the remote transmits to the VCR/TV or the like the information necessary for the next recording/selection which may be the primary channel (i.e. user records channel 5 for 30 minutes, then channel 6 for 30 minutes, and then back to channel 5 for 30 minutes).

In considering claims 7-11 and 16-19,

Is met by Uehira which discloses that the key inputs/selection for the device channel up/down and the various recording options (col 4, line 35-62).
